at their mother's knee. This had a power in it that changed them from weak, delicate boys into strong, robust boys.

It has the same power to-day. Boys and girls who are pale and weak get food and energy out of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It makes children grow. . . .

"STUNG!"

How, and Why Council
Fund

BLAKE GIVES OPINION

After being badly "stung" by accepting Canton's share of the bridge fund from the county commissioners the members of the council, who made this error in November of last year, are now endeavoring to find some person to ally the pains caused by the "stinger." It was not necessary to tell them they had come in contact with the business end of the bee, for this was realized when their portion of the regular taxes collected was doled out to them at the court house. But how to get rid of the pesky thing now or secure more of the money is a problem that seems too deep for them to solve. At the last meeting of the council one of the wisecracks asked that the matter be referred to City Solicitor Blake, and that he give a written opinion to the members of the council upon the matter. This opinion was handed in Monday evening and reads as follows:

On the 11th day of November, 1907, your Honorable body believing that the interests of said city would be best promoted by securing the proportion of the bridge fund of Stark county allowed by law, instructed the gentleman who was then city solicitor to make a demand upon the proper county authority for said proportion, and in compliance with said demand, the city is now receiving said proportion of said bridge fund.

In addition to the authority of the county commissioners to make a levy for road and bridge purposes, the said commissioners also have authority to make a special levy for the restoration of an important bridge belonging to or maintained by the county.

The question arises as to whether or not the money realized from a special tax levy made by the county commissioners for the restoration of an important bridge belonging to or maintained by the county, should be considered part of the bridge fund from which said city would be entitled to one-half of the proceeds of said special tax levy raised from the taxable property within said city.

As a preliminary to the discussion of this question, permit me to state that the investigation which has been made by me has been so made with the earnest desire to find some legal means of increasing to the maximum limit the amount of money the city would be entitled to for bridge purposes.

It would give me great pleasure to give an opinion that the city is entitled to a portion of a special bridge levy and have that opinion upheld by the courts.

What the law is and what we would like it to be, are two different propositions.

Section 2824 of the revised statutes of Ohio, omitting such portions not applying to this county, reads as follows:

"The commissioners, at their March or June sessions, annually, may levy on each dollar, of valuation of taxable property within their county, for road and bridge purposes, as follows: In a county where the valuation of taxable property exceeds $50,000,000 and does not exceed $80,000,000, seven-tenths of a mill; . . . and of the tax so levied, the commissioners shall set apart such portion as they may deem proper, to be applied to the building and repair of bridges, which portion so set apart shall be called a bridge fund, and shall be entered on the duplicate in a separate column, and shall be collected in money, and expended, except as may be otherwise provided by law, under the directions of the commissioners in building bridges and culverts, or in repairing the same.

To more clearly, if possible, show the intention of the legislature that a special levy made for the purpose of restoring an important bridge should not be considered a part of the bridge fund, the statutes specifically provide that the proceeds of such special levy shall be applied solely to the restoration of the important bridge for the purpose of which the levy is made. This portion of this section of the statute reads as follows: "That in case an important bridge belonging to or maintained by any county has been or shall be destroyed or become dangerous to public travel by decay or otherwise, and the restoration thereof is deemed necessary for public accommodation, the commissioners may levy a special tax for that purpose, not exceeding one mill and five-tenths, the proceeds of which shall be applied solely to such restoration."

The hardship resulting from the law to cities desiring to have charge of the construction and repair of their bridges has been foreseen by other cities as is evidenced by special legislation for their benefit. Cincinnati on demand is entitled to one-third of all the money raised in Hamilton county for general bridge purposes.

Marietta secures the whole of the proportion of the bridge fund collected upon property within said city.

Dayton may levy its own bridge tax and the commissioners of Montgomery county cannot levy a tax for road and bridge purposes on property within said city.

Warren also has a special law for its benefit.

From the law as it exists, the following conclusions are reached:

1.—That the city on demand is entitled to one-half of the proportion of the bridge fund collected upon the property within said city.

2.—That the proceeds of a special tax levy by the county commissioners for the restoration of an important bridge can be used by the county commissioners solely for the purpose of the levy, and the proceeds of said special tax are not a part of the bridge fund to which the city would be entitled to a proportion.

This law as it applies to the city of Canton when the city demands its proportion of the bridge fund, operates unfairly, since the city bears a much greater burden in the matter of taxes for bridge purposes than it receives benefit.

To overcome this disadvantage and give the city some adequate return for the money paid into the county bridge fund, it will be necessary that the present law be amended so as to give our city a just proportion of moneys paid in to the bridge fund of the county, as well as moneys paid in on account of special levies made for special bridges.

Respectfully submitted,

fund" in these words, "and of the tax so levied (refers to the tax of seven-tenths of a mill) the commissioners shall set apart such portion, as they may deem proper, to be applied to the building and repair of bridges, which portion so set apart shall be called a bridge fund, and shall be entered on the duplicate, etc., etc., and expended, except as may be otherwise provided by law, under the directions of the commissioners in building bridges and culverts, or in repairing the same."

The bridge fund having been so defined, what does the statute mean when it subsequently provides, "in all cities of the second grade of the first class and all cities of the second class, one-half of the proportion of the said bridge fund collected upon the property within said city, in all cases where the city council shall demand it, shall be paid into the city treasury, and shall be expended by such city for the purpose of building and repairing bridges." Said bridge fund mentioned refers to the bridge fund as set apart by the county commissioners from the seven-tenths of a mill levied for the purpose of building bridges and culverts or in repairing the same.

To more clearly, if possible, show the intention of the legislature that a special levy made for the purpose of restoring an important bridge should not be considered a part of the bridge fund, the statutes specifically provide that the proceeds of such special levy shall be applied solely to the restoration of the important bridge for the purpose of which the levy is made. This portion of this section of the statute reads as follows: "That in case an important bridge belonging to or maintained by any county has been or shall be destroyed or become dangerous to public travel by decay or otherwise, and the restoration thereof is deemed necessary for public accommodation, the commissioners may levy a special tax for that purpose, not exceeding one mill and five-tenths, the proceeds of which shall be applied solely to such restoration."

SECRETS

Of the Guinness Charnel

House to be Revealed to Grand Jury

MAY SOLVE MYSTERIES

Laporte, Ind., May 18.—The center of interest in the Guinness tragedies was changed today to the court house where States Attorney Smith began the grand jury inquiry into the charnel house mystery. While the grand jury was at work, the news was flashed to the city that Mrs. Guinness had been apprehended on an ocean steamer and there was a frenzied rush from the court house to the newspaper offices for confirmation. With the denial of the report the crowd rushed back to the court house and the city resumed its normal calm. Forty witnesses will give evidence before the body of inquiry against Ray Lamphere.

He is accused of burning alive Mrs. Belle Guinness and her children in their home on the morning of April 28.

Secrets said not to have been disclosed by the authorities are expected to be revealed to the grand jury. That an indictment will be returned charging arson and murder in the first degree is looked upon as a certainty. There is the possibility that another indictment will be voted charging Lamphere with being an accessory to the murder of Helgelein.

Coroner Mack today appointed Dr. Wilcox and Dr. Osborne to hold autopsies over the bodies of the unidentified dead in the murder hall morgue. A finding was returned tonight that six of the bodies were those of males, while one was that of a female. This conclusion proves that Mrs. Guinness killed one of her own sex in addition to murdering her foster daughter Jennie Olson, and it is the theory of the authorities that the woman was the wife of a supposed college professor who was in the charnel house the night that Emil Greening saw a strange couple. He was told next morning that Jennie Olson had left the city to attend college in the west and had been accompanied by the man and woman whom he saw the night before. According to this story three inmates of the house that night were victims of the death chambers. The skeletons over which autopsies were held this afternoon will be buried in the potters' field.

The mystery surrounding the fate of Abraham Phillips, of Burlington, W. Va., is believed to have been solved. Phillips disappeared in the winter of 1907, telling his friends he was going to northern Indiana to marry a rich widow who wanted a life partner. He took a large sum of money with him leaving unsold a fine farm and considerable personal property. That was the last seen of him. Phillips was a railway man and in the sifting and sluicing of the debris a watch was found on the case of which was engraved a locomotive. Coroner Mack believes this throws light on the fate of the West Virginia man.

J. C. Renden, threw additional light on the fate of John Moe, the unsuspecting Elbow Lake, Minn., farmer, today, when he positively identified the watch and chain carried by Ray Lamphere as the time piece carried by his half brother. He said he could not be mistaken. Moe is believed by several of the Pinkerton detectives on the case to also have been an inmate of the Guinness house the night the supposed college professor and his wife and Jennie Olson entered the chamber of death. The private burying ground of the ogress that night claimed four victims.

A witness was found today to whom Ray Lamphere is alleged to have told startling stories of what he now believed were murderous acts committed in the charnel house. He is alleged to have said that many nights he could not sleep. He proceeded up and down his room maintaining a vigil, but fearful to venture outside the door. He is purported to have said that he heard unusual commotion in the downstairs rooms as though made by the dragging of bodies about the room and of struggling. This may prove that he is alleged to have watched on the outside while the murderers killed and dismembered within.

If the Vital Organs of the Body are in good condition and are working properly, there is no reason why you should be sick or weak.

Most diseases come from germs. Germs are everywhere, unless it might be in the rarified air of high mountains. We take germs in with every breath we draw and with every particle of food or drink. There are many kinds and each kind may cause a certain kind of disease.

If the germs find in the body CLEAN, LIVE, VIRILE BLOOD, they are killed. If they find starved and rundown nerves and poor, weak blood, they lodge and breed at an incredible rate, and soon consumption, typhoid, malaria, rheumatism, diabetes, or one of many diseases is fastened on the system.

A catarrhal condition of the mucous or lining membranes of the body is an ideal feeding and developing place for these germs.

To prevent disease germs from securing a foothold in the system it is therefore essential that the blood be in good healthy condition and the vital organs of the body working properly.

Nearly every vital organ of the body is affected by catarrh, when that condition has obtained a hold upon the system. The drain that this makes upon the blood and the weakness that follows opens wide the gate for the entrance of the germs of disease.

Do you wish to be strong and healthy? Do you wish to throw off the load of disease and misery you have been carrying? The one prompt way to secure these results is to free your system of the catarrh that is weakening every vital organ of your body. Cure the catarrh, build up the general strength, and health is yours. The blood will not yet yield to any purifier known as long as the system is so polluted with catarrh. All chronic diseases are more readily cured when these conditions are properly treated.

DRS. McLAUGHLIN AND PYLE CURE CATARRH and many conditions of ill health that result from a weakened worn-out system. In curing these diseases they put the blood in good condition, free the system from the poisons which have been retained by the skin, the liver, the kidneys, the bowels and the stomach. These results come promptly and surely from their treatment, as they will be pleased to prove to you if you are interested and will call at their office.
